

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation AND partisanship on behalf of one side or the other. Am I to assume that an anti-Bush program will be aired the same night? That would be the fair thing to do, would it not?

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line and less of what we need for our democracy. Instead of something produced at "News Central" far away, it's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Please prevent Sinclair from being able to air this program. It is not a matter of admonishing free speech, rather it is a matter of not using publicly owned airwaves for political mud-slinging. Thank you.
